Few wines speak so strongly of where they're from as those produced by Eloi Cedó Perelló on the island of Mallorca.

Originally from Montsant, Eloi's project started back in 2010 when he began making a string of one-off wines from the vineyards farmed by friends around his native Catalunya. In 2012 he produced the first vintage of his now iconic cuvée, Chateau Paquita. A tribute to his late mother, this arresting blend of Mallorcan varieties was one of those wines that simply stops you in your tracks — a truly unique expression of man, grape and place.

An island of incredible beauty, Mallorca also offers a unique climate for growing grapes. Though it spends most of the year bathed in sunshine, the vineyards benefit from the Mediterranean's sea breeze and the cool, dry winds of the Mistral. The fascinating local varieties are grown over what the locals call 'Call Vermell' — red clay soils which are incredibly rich in iron and lend the wines a distinct minerality.

Eloi has two and half hectares of vines spread across a collection of tiny plots dotted around the south east of the island in the villages of Felantix and Porreres. They range from a hectare to just a tenth of that size and the oldest vines were planted in the sixties. He farms organically, employing biodynamic principles. He also purchases grapes from a friend for his Novetat Total and frequently collaborates with his friend Cati Ribot on their Lo Vileró cuvées.

In the bodega Eloi displays a real lightness of touch, adding nothing at any stage, producing wines with an uncanny sense of place. Though their heady flavours of sunkissed fruit, herbs, citrus and brine transport you straight to the island, they remain delicate, nuanced and incredibly light on their feet.

A blend of old vines of Callet, with Manto Negro and Garnatxa Peluda from younger plants grown on various plots over the island's emblematic red clay soils. The former varieties were picked and fermented by parcel and macerated from anywhere between a fortnight to a month, with varying amounts of whole bunches, whilst the Garnatxa was macerated carbonically for a week. After pressing, the grapes rested in old casks for a year. Compact and elegant, the nose carries delicate scents of red berries, sea breeze and woody herbs, while the palate brings pomegranate, minerals and spice. A wine with an incredible sense of place.
