OLEK BONDONIO

Barbaresco, Piemonte

Olek Bondonio has become one of the most sought after names in Barbaresco.

Olek grew up in the family's farmhouse, 'La Berchialla', which sits amongst Barbaresco's most famous crus and has been in his family for several centuries. After conquering Italy as a professional snowboarder, he turned his mind to wine, working in the Langhe and also abroad before returning home to look after the family's vineyards.

Olek is lucky enough to work with some of the very best sites in Piedmont and does everything he can to make sure each wine speaks of this wonderful place. Today he farms close to seven hectares of vines, split up between Barbaresco's Roncaglette and Staderi crus as well as parcels in Altavilla, Neive and Catagnole delle Lanze, and a famous vineyard high in the hills above Alba. Most recently, he has rented a small parcel of old vines in Verduno, from which he will produce his first Barolo, 'San Lorenzo'.

In the vines, Olek works organically and with a real hands on approach, whilst in the cantina he works without fuss, exhibiting a patience beyond his years. The results are pure, deep and decidedly old school expressions of Piedmont's local grapes.

LANGHE NEBBIOLO

This Nebbiolo comes from a beautiful young vineyard completely surrounded by forest and planted over steep slopes some five hundred metres above sea level. It spent a month on skins, before being transferred to botti grandi for élevage. A textbook example of the genre, here neat tannins frame delicate flavours of earth and rose, making for a wine that over delivers in every way.
