LE COSTE

Gradoli, Lazio

Gianmarco Antonuzzi and Clémentine Bouveron tend around fourteen hectares of vines, around Lago di Bolsena near Gianmarco's childhood town of Gradoli in Lazio's north.

They worked for many years for some of France's great vigneroni and their time spent with the likes of Bruno Schueller and Dard et Ribo has been influential on their work. They moved to Gradoli in the early 2000s, seeing untapped potential and eager to apply what they had learned to the fascinating local grape varieties and unique terroir.

Their picturesque vineyards sit amongst chestnut trees, shrubs, oaks and the olive trees from which they produce their excellent olio. The soils are of volcanic origin and are rich in iron and minerals. The vines are planted at a density of up to ten thousand plants per hectare and are a mix of massale selections and ungrafted vines. Everything is done by hand, with careful attention to the needs of each plant and while biodynamic principles are employed, the approach here goes above and beyond.

Each year they produce a dizzying number of different wines which traverse many styles. They are vinified without any additions in an ancient cellar in the village's centre, where Gianmarco has proven to be a real master of élevage. The results are some of the purest, most delicious wines we have tried.

Aleatico from a fifty year old vineyard, planted some five hundred metres above sea level. After a short rest in the press, the grapes were pressed directly to vats for fermentation, before ten months of élevage in old barrels. Reflecting this once in a lifetime vintage, this is a little darker and deeper than previous years, drawing you in with exotic scents of rose and smoke, whilst the palate offers a gorgeous blood orange bitterness, flesh and grip. As impressive as ever, it remains one of the great rosé wines.
