GABRIO & GIOTTO BINI

Pantelleria, Sicilia

The Serragghia farm can be found on the wild and windswept isle of Pantelleria, which belongs to Sicily, but in reality it is much closer to Africa.

At the foot of an ancient volcano, it occupies a dreamlike landscape, where remote terraces are planted with caper bushes, citrus groves and old bush vines of fascinating local varieties. Occupying some of the island's highest points, the vines are cooled by a constant breeze which keeps temperatures surprisingly moderate, even in the height of summer, lending the wines an airy freshness, whilst the close proximity to the sea and volcanic soils imbue an invigorating, uplifting quality.

The several hectares of vineyards are never treated and are tended by hand and horse. Grapes are handpicked and left to ferment long and slowly in terracotta amphorae of various ages and sizes which are buried amongst the vines. They are bottled unfiltered, with no additions, producing vibrant, uplifting wines that are truly one of a kind.

Pantelleria is a place with a rare energy, captured so brilliantly in these remarkable wines.

SERRAGGHIA HERITAGE
2023

From a parcel of ungrafted vines of Zibibbo that are over one hundred years old. Though made in a similar fashion, this is a little more compact, powerful and intense than the Serragghia Zibibbo, with neat tannins framing complex notes of orange, blossom and minerals. A wine with a profound sense of place.
